A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after allowance or after an Office action under Ex Parte Quayle, 25 USPQ 74, 453 O.G. 213 (Comm'r Pat. 1935). Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, prosecution in this application has been reopened pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/27/08 has been entered.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 249-253 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Suda et al (5,978,712) in view of Barreras (5,807,397) and Spinelli et al (7,328,068). Suda et al discloses (column 1, lines 15-29) discloses that methods are well known in the art to treat incontinence by implanting electrodes that are "directly embedded into the pelvic floor muscles" to provide electrical stimulation to the muscles and that the intensity, frequency stimulation period and the like depend on cases and individual differences. Suda et al discloses the claimed method except for specifically teaching the stimulator device being implanted in the patient. Barreras discloses a device that is used to treat incontinence using electrodes to stimulate muscle and teaches that it is well known to implant the stimulator device in the patient. Therefore a modification of Suda et al such that the device is actually implanted into the patient would have been obvious since Barreras teaches that it is well known in the art to fully implant the stimulator device into a patient. Suda et al also fails to specifically teach applying a biphasic waveform. Spinelli et al discloses a similar method using electrical stimulation to treat incontinence and teaches that different waveforms can be used including biphasic. Therefore a modification of Suda et al such that the particular waveform used is a biphasic waveform would have been obvious in view of Spinelli et al which shows that such a waveform is known to provide such stimulation.

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 273-285 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for implanting at least one electrode in contact with a pelvic muscle, does not reasonably provide enablement for the electrode being in general alignment with a urethra. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. The specification discloses the electrode being implanted within the muscle but nowhere discloses, except the claims, that the electrode is placed in general alignment with a urethra.
